Dear Parents and Carers,

It has come to my attention that there has been a lot of traffic on social media about an alleged bullying incident at Midsomer Norton Primary School.

Unfortunately, schools sometimes have issues between children that need to be investigated thoroughly. It is helpful if people allow the school to resolve the issue without people giving their views on social media. We need to investigate in a measured and balanced way and it would be unfair to draw conclusions from information supplied or advice given by parties who were not present and may not even know the children or families involved.

Far from helping us to resolve the situation, it is adding fuel to the flames when really we should all be trying to sort the issues and then find a way to move forward.

We take all allegations of bullying extremely seriously at our school. Allegations need to be thoroughly investigated and where appropriate, action taken. This can take some time and, as a school, we need to be able to address any issues and support the children and families involved.

Thank you so much to those parents who have not become involved in commenting on or sharing this post. Your support is appreciated.

Kind regards,

Alun Randell
